

BUDE - North Cornish Adventure

Bude's a sweet town on a savage coast, a smugglers' town, a wreckers' town. North Cornwall is one of those places where the coast meets the countryside. If you like your history, you'll be delighted.

Old King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table, thought to have had their Camelot around here, seem really modern by comparison with the geology of the cliffs. Think in terms of 300 million years ago for them! Interested in the story of canals? Bude still has its unique sea lock. Country churches? They're everywhere! But even if all this leaves you cold, we defy you not to be moved by the scenery all around. It is, quite simply, tremendous.

HARTLAND HOTEL ★★ ★

A superb elevated position overlooking beautiful beaches and the little harbour, this was what the Fry family, of chocolate fame, were looking for in their Cornish home. Fortunately for us, their house became the Hartland Hotel, now in the same family ownership (the Barkers this time) for over 25 years. It's very well furnished, has a super sun terrace and an outdoor swimming pool. The ballroom's attractive, too. This place is a gem.
