

ISLE OF WIGHT - Sandown

Sandown is the Island's premier holiday resort. It's blessed with a very favourable climate and a six mile stretch of sandy beach set against the scenic backdrop of Culver Cliffs. But it owes most of its development to the coming of the railway, itself largely a by-product of Queen Victoria's liking for the Island. Here, she definitely was amused. Oh yes, and the railway still serves Sandown, in the shape of 1930s long-retired London underground trains. It's a shame they never served on the Victoria Line, but at least they let you buy a ticket to Ryde!

THE BURLINGTON HOTEL ★★

Built as an Edwardian seaside residence, the family-run Burlington Hotel offers comfortable accommodation just a couple of minutes from Sandown's lovely sandy beaches. The food's really good and there are relaxation facilities, like the bar and the small, heated indoor pool, to match. There isn't a lift, but we can request a ground floor room if you ask us. However, the good news is that in any event you won't have to climb further than the first floor. We really like this hotel. We think you will, too.
