

BELGIUM - Ostend

These days this lively Belgian North Sea resort and port boasts beautiful sandy beaches, an attractive esplanade and much, much more. It has, then, developed a great deal since the 15th century, when it was just a small village. Before that it was a medieval settlement. Truly a resort for all seasons, Ostend provides everything from a leisurely stroll along a sunny esplanade to the opportunity to browse department stores and small boutiques if the weather is less kindly. But it is also ideally situated for visits to famous first world war sites and that broodingly romantic Venice of the north, Bruges.
